Kiel University aims to attract more qualified women to professorships.

The Institute for Social Sciences in the Faculty of Business, Economics and Social Sciences of Kiel University invites applications for a

W 2-Professorship in Political Science, especially Democratic Political Systems

to start at the earliest possible time

The future job holder shall be responsible for the subject area Political Science, especially Democratic Political Systems in research and teaching.

The ideal candidate has published their research in internationally visible, peer-reviewed journals and/or with highly ranked, internationally visible presses and is experienced in attracting third-party funding. We expect the ability to connect with the research foci of the Institute, the Faculty of Business, Economics and Social Sciences ("Economic and Social Transformations in a Globalized World") and the Kiel University ("Social, Environmental and Cultural Change") as well as the willingness to engage in interdisciplinary cooperation. An emphasis on empirical-analytical research on issues of political transformation and the resilience of political systems is desirable.

The ability to teach the areas "Political System of Germany" and "Political Systems" in the Bachelor's and Master's programs is required. Expertise in quantitative and/or qualitative research methods is also expected, as well as the willingness to take an active role in teaching the methodology of the subject. Excellent teaching, proven expertise in higher education didactics, and the willingness to actively participate in the training of doctoral students are expected. The ability and willingness to teach in German and English are required.

Please refer to the recruitment requirements of § 61 of the Higher Education Act of the State of Schleswig-Holstein. More information can be found at www.berufungen.uni-kiel.de (in German).

Kiel University is committed to increasing the number of female researchers in research and teaching and therefore expressly encourages qualified women to apply. Women will be given priority if their aptitude, qualifications and professional performance are of equal value.

The university is committed to the employment of severely disabled people. For this reason, severely disabled applicants will be given preferential treatment if they have the appropriate qualifications.
We expressly welcome applications from people with a migration background. Application photographs are not required and we expressly request that you refrain from submitting any.

Applications with the usual documents (curriculum vitae, list of publications, list of courses taught, teaching evaluations, copies of academic degrees, contact information of two references) along with your private and business address, telephone number and e-mail address should be sent, preferably in electronic form (one pdf document) to the following address by 21st January 2022:

Dean of the Faculty of Business, Economics and Social Sciences
Kiel University,
Olshausenstr. 40,
24098 Kiel,
Germany.
dekanat@wiso.uni-kiel.de