Dear Colleagues interested in Ocean and Polar Politics and in our Thematic Group, hello and welcome to our summer newsletter! Initially posting it was planned for July, but as it goes now coming after the summer break - in a very extensive installment!

But let us first celebrate now more than 200 colleagues and interested individuals receiving our newsletter!!!

For all recent new additions to the list: this is the almost bi-monthly newsletter of the German Political Science Association's (DVPW: Deutsche Vereinigung für Politikwissenschaft) Thematic Group (TG) on Polar and Ocean Politics. We are based in Germany and in the discipline of Political Science, but see our network as being inclusive and interested in as well as interesting for everyone doing research on polar and/or ocean politics in the broadest sense. Our goal is to facilitate exchange among all interested in polar and/or ocean politics and respective research. We also aim to further the visible presence of our topics within the discipline of political science and the broader polar and marine social science research community, as well as generate attention to our research from funding agencies, policy-makers, and natural science polar and ocean researchers. We do so mainly with our newsletter, representing our group at respective conferences and events, an Early Career Researcher (ECR) café, as well as with our own annual network conference.

Apropos our conference: In this newsletter, we alert you to our call for paper and panel abstracts for the 2027 TG conference (1), which will take place together and in parallel with the International Polar Conference of the German Society for Polar Research (DGP) coming February (2). We also remind you of our ECR café, taking place first Tuesday each month (3). This is followed by a call for panels and papers for the DVPW's General Congress (4), and a DVPW event informing about funding opportunities for ECRs (5). Then we have an absolutely staggering list of six calls for at least 20 PhD positions (6-11), five calls for 11 post-doc positions in academia (12-16), and two more positions in ocean political practice (17-18). As usually not all and not even most of the positions are directly connected to Polar and/or Ocean politics. However, all would be suitable for respective cases or benefit from the respective perspective. Next, come two calls for participation in a Greenland PhD science slam competition and the Arctic Frontiers conference (19-20), as well as the announcement of the biennial Marine Social Science Lecture at HIFMB in Oldenburg (21). Finally, we round off with publications from our midst, other publications and other interesting material (22-24), and a date for the diaries (25). We conclude with the usual call for contributions to the next newsletter and information on subscription.

1. Next Year's Thematic Group Conference, deadline for abstract submission, 03.11.2026

The next annual conference of the thematic group will take place 24-25.02.2027 at the University of Bremen. Our conference provides a platform for dialogue and exchange between scholars at all career stages to discuss their current research in the politics of the oceans and polar regions! It takes place during a larger "polar and ocean week" in Bremen and Bremerhaven as the German Society for Polar Research (DGP) is also holding their International Polar Conference (IPC) the same week. We have teamed up with the IPC's organising team to ensure that their social science programming doesn't fall on the same days as our conference for those of you wishing to attend both events. For the IPC's call, see next item right below! For the thematic group's conference, the call is attached. You'll find it also here: <

<https://www.dvpw.de/gliederung/themengruppen/polar-und-meerespolitik/calls-und-ausschreibungen> >.

2. Deutsche Gesellschaft für Polarforschung: 30. Internationale Polartagung "Crossing Boundaries – Poles in Transformation", deadline for abstract submission, 09.10.2026

The conference will take place at the Alfred Wegener Institute in Br emerhaven, 22.02.-26.02.2027. It is dedicated to the upcoming centennial anniversary of the German Society for Polar Research and celebrates nearly a century of interdisciplinary polar and high-altitude research as well as international collaboration. The conference brings together researchers from various disciplines and generations to strengthen scientific exchange and contribute to the scientific agenda of the 5th International Polar Year (2032/33). The program includes scientific presentations and poster sessions, short talks by early-career researchers, a public evening lecture, and a workshop organized by the Association of Polar Early Career Scientists (APECS).<

3. Reminder: Next Thematic Group's Early Career Researcher's Café, 01.09.2026, 10.00AM, Online

Are you an early career researcher working on polar or marine stuff? Then start your week off right by joining us for an informal coffee chat to share updates on funding opportunities, discuss your research interests, and swap advice with others in the field. There's no need to prepare, just bring yourself and your favourite beverage. We meet every first Tuesday of the month at 10:00 AM (CET). Dates in 2026: September 1st, October 6th, November 3rd, December 1st. If you would like a calendar invite with the meeting link, please email <charlotte.gehrke@hifmb.de>. Meeting link: <<https://awi.webex.com/awi/j.php?MTID=m67b2f833395c666d8c87009ce6862ddd> >. Meeting number: 2782 708 7854; Meeting password: TGTCafeMeetz26.

4. DVPW-Event: Kongress 2027 " Welt im Umbruch. Politikwissenschaft auch?", deadline for submitting paper, closed panel and roundtable proposals, 31.10.2026

For the DVPW Congress, September 7–10, 2027, in Leipzig, the Program Committee is calling for a total of 160 panels. It would be great if the TG were represented by at least two events! Anyone planning to submit a panel or roundtable on polar and/or maritime policy topics is welcome to use our platform for respective announcements or organization. For more information on submission requirements, click here: <<https://www.dvpw.de/dvpw2027> >.

5. DVPW-Event „Förderinstitutionen im Gespräch", 18.11.2026, Online

At this event, the German Research Foundation (DFG) will be represented by Markus Stanat and members of the Social Sciences Review Board for Political Science. This time the focus will be on DFG funding programs specifically aimed at early-career researchers. Details and registration/online-link will be sent to DVPW members in due time. Btw: did you ever consider becoming a DVPW member?

6. PhD Position in (Arctic) Border Studies, application deadline, 15.09.2026

A PhD Fellow in Border Studies is sought by the Centre for Geopolitics, Peace and Security (GPS), Faculty of Humanities, Social Sciences and Education (HSL) at University of Tromsø, Norway. The offer reads "The successful candidate is expected to conduct research on topics related to Arctic borders and borderlands. The research aims to enhance our understanding of Arctic borders within the current geopolitical context." For the call and further information see < <https://www.jobbnorge.no/en/available-jobs/job/302083/phd-fellow-in-border-studies> >.

7. PhD Positions "Reconciliation and its Equivalents in a Transcultural Comparison", application deadline, 17.09.2026

At the Bonn Center for Reconciliation Studies, the new DFG Research Training Group (Graduiertenkolleg) "Reconciliation and Its Equivalents in Transcultural Comparison" is inviting applications for 12 (!) doctoral research positions. "How do different societies deal with conflict? How are conflicts transformed, addressed, or overcome? And what concepts, practices, and strategies might function as equivalents to 'reconciliation' across different cultural and historical contexts? Bringing together perspectives from sociology and social sciences, humanities, cultural studies, [the] Research Training Group will explore these questions through interdisciplinary and transcultural comparative research, across regions, cultures, and historical periods." Applications from a broad range of disciplinary backgrounds, including social sciences, history, peace and conflict studies, social and cultural anthropology, law and more, are welcomed. Full call and application details: < <https://www.versoehnung.uni-bonn.de/de/aktuelles/aktuelle-nachrichten/stellenausschreibung-12-wissenschaftliche-mitarbeiterinnen-fuer-das-grako-versoehnung-und-ihre-aequivalente-im-transkulturellen-vergleich> >.

8. PhD Positions at University of Akureyri, Iceland, Open Call, application deadline, 22.09.2026

Up to 3(!) PhD opportunities are available in - among other fields - Social Sciences (sociology, law, psychology). Applicants are expected to develop their own research proposal in collaboration with a prospective supervisor - among the scholars in Akureyri are renowned Arctic social scientists and Polar Law experts! < <https://www.unak.is/english/university/human-resource/open-positions/open-call-funded-phd-positions-at-the-university-of-akureyri> >.

9. PhD Opportunity with scholarships in "Cooperative Security", application deadline, 30.09.2026

The newly established Leuphana Center for Cooperative Security (LCCS) at Leuphana University of Lüneburg invites applications for its international doctoral program "Cooperative Security". This interdisciplinary program supports innovative PhD research on pressing global security challenges from the perspectives of political science/international relations, economics, law and psychology. From the call for applications: For the first cohort, proposals are invited that examine international dimensions of security, particularly: Emerging international security threats shaped by patterns of (asymmetric) interdependence in the political, economic, legal, cultural and cognitive realms, Strategies adopted by state and non-state actors to address international security threats, (Changing) international security outcomes, including norms, market and governance structures and institutions, The interplay between cooperation and autonomy in addressing international security threats. Applications are welcome in the following areas: International Security, (European) Migration Governance, Economic Security, International Law and Security, Negotiation Psychology and Security. More information here: < <https://www.leuphana.de/en/research-centers/leuphana-center-for-cooperative-security/phd-and-scholarship-program-lccs.html#> >.

10. PhD Funding Opportunities at Groningen University: Double/Joint Doctorates, deadline for applications, 01.10.2026

Groningen University hosts the Arctic Centre of the Netherlands, and one of the largest IR departments in Europe. Both contribute to respective Arctic research and expertise. Double Doctorates (DD) and Joint Doctorates (JD) are doctoral projects carried out under the supervision of researchers from two institutions (Sandwich PhD). Those admitted to the doctorates can apply for funding for the time in Groningen. For further information see < <https://www.rug.nl/research/gradschool-humanities/phd-programme/double-joint-doctorates/?lang=en> >. If you have any administrative questions or plan to submit a request for a Sandwich PhD, please contact Manou Jonink < doubledoctorates.gsh@rug.nl >. For questions on Arctic expertise and possible supervision in Groningen contact Christoph Humrich < c.humrich@rug.nl >.

11. PhD Positions for project "Functioning Democracies at the Water's Edge", deadline for applications, 15.10.2026

The German Maritime Museum – Leibniz Institute for Maritime History (DSM) in Bremerhaven - fills two positions in the above mentioned research project, funded by the Volkswagen Foundation. DSM`s exhibition and research program focus on the study of maritime technologies and the relationship between humanity and the sea. The project analyses the effects of global transformations in harbour cities on political participation. Please direct all questions related to the scientific profile of the projects to: <M.Munir@dsm.museum>, and administrative questions to: <personal@dsm.museum>. More detailed information on the positions and application process here: <<https://www.dsm.museum/stellenangebote/two-phd-candidates> >.

12. Post-doc Position "Science-Policy Engagement and Climate Futures", application deadline 30.08.2026

The position is based in the Public Administration and Governance unit at Oslo Business School, Oslo Metropolitan University. The position is part of an ERC-funded research project examining how individuals, public institutions and societies develop the capacity to anticipate and respond to long-term climate risks ("Capacities for More Effective Long-term Governance Capacities - CAMELOT). CAMELOT focuses on the cognitive, emotional, and social foundations of "governance capacities" — that is, the ability to engage with uncertain, future-oriented challenges such as climate tipping points. The project investigates whether and how participatory science-policy engagement processes can strengthen future-oriented thinking, agency, and decision-making across multiple governance scales. 13. Post-Doc Position "Konfliktsoziologie", application deadline 31.08.2026

Die Stelle ist an der Professur für Allgemeine Soziologie und Konfliktsoziologie, Institut für Soziologie am Fachbereich Sozial- und Kulturwissenschaften der Uni Giessen zu besetzen. Sie gilt insbesondere der Forschung zu innergesellschaftlichen Konflikten im Kontext des Klimawandels (darunter: Durchführung vergleichender empirischer Untersuchungen, Mitwirkung an gemeinsamen Publikationen und Veranstaltungen sowie Unterstützung von Drittmittelanträgen). Einschlägige thematische Kenntnisse der Konfliktsoziologie und insbesondere der Forschung zu Zivilgesellschaft, sozialen Bewegungen und Protesten und/oder angrenzenden Forschungsgebieten im Bereich politische Partizipation, politische Polarisierung und politische Konflikte sind von Vorteil, wie auch sehr gute Deutschkenntnisse in Wort und Schrift. Mehr Infos hier: < <https://jobs.uni-giessen.de/wissenschaftlichespersonal/jobad?prj=2709P708> >.

14. Post -doc Position "Peace and Security in the High North", application deadline, 15.09.2026

A Postdoctoral Research Fellow position is available at the Centre for Geopolitics, Peace, and Security (GPS), Faculty of Humanities, Social Sciences and Teacher Education (HSL), University of Tromsø. The position is linked to research on peace, security, and societal resilience in Norway's Finnmark and connected to a project in the Centre's central research pillar "Resilient Societies." The project examines mechanisms of relational peace in northern Norwegian communities, with a workplace in Tromsø and fieldwork in Finnmark. For further information see here: < <https://www.jobbnorge.no/en/available-jobs/job/301360/postdoctoral-fellow-in-peace-and-security-in-the-high-north> >.

deadline, 30.09.2026

The Leuphana Transformation Lab at Leuphana University of Lüneburg focuses on collaborative and independent research on transformation. Up to 7 (!) positions are advertised! Proposals have to align with one of the three conceptual streams that will guide the research carried out in the Leuphana Transformation Lab: "Epistemologies of Transformation critically examines how transformation can be known, conceptualized, narrated, and enacted across different social, cultural, and political contexts as well as diverse disciplines... Disruption and Transformation explores disruptiveness as a central feature of life in contemporary globalized societies at a moment when a putatively permanent mode of crisis may intensify experiences of rupture... Scales and Temporalities of Transformation critically engages the scalar and temporal frames through which transformation is envisioned, narrated, and organized... Applicants may additionally choose to link their research proposal to one of the Key Subject Areas of Embracing Transformation (climate futures in digital cultures, democratic resilience, organizing in times of crisis, towards a regenerative society, and companies as drivers of sustainability transformations), to psychology of transformation, or to another discipline represented at Leuphana." For more information see: < <https://www.leuphana.de/universitaet/jobs-und-karriere/stipendien/ansicht-stipendien/2026/07/30/leuphana-transformation-lab-offers-up-to-seven-postdoctoral-fellowships.html#> >.

19. Open Competition Event: PAASISAVUT, application deadline, 01.09.2026

Paasisavut is Arctic Hub's research dissemination competition for PhDs who are engaged in research in and around Greenland. The winner is the one who, in just five minutes, manages to convey one's research in a simple, catchy and relevant way without compromising on the scientific. The competition will take place at a live show in Katuaq, Nuuk, on 13 November 2026, and will also be broadcast live on KNR TV. For how to apply to become part of the competition, see: < <https://www.paasisavut.gl> >.

20. Arctic Frontiers conference 2027: "Information/Disinformation", submission deadline, 05.10.2026

The next Arctic Frontiers conference will be held February 1-4, 2027, in Tromsø, Norway. The organizers write: "We live in a world where disinformation and distrust of science is widespread. It is more important than ever to facilitate knowledge-based conversations between science, policy, communities and businesses in the Arctic. At a critical time for the region, it is important that the discussions reflect the reality of the people that live there and that leading Arctic voices come together to share their perspectives. At Arctic Frontiers 2027: Information/Disinformation, there will be seven science themes. These represent the latest advancements in Arctic research and span the physical and social sciences, as well as technological developments and innovative methods. Each theme is co-organised by a session committee and led by scientists from our partner organisations. Submissions are made via the Oxford Abstracts portal, linked at the bottom of this page. Email < freya@arcticfrontiers.com > for further enquiries. More information on themes here: < <https://arcticfrontiers.com/science/2027-themes/> >.

21. Event: Marine Social Science Lecture by Mia Bennett, 04-05.11.2026, registration required

The biennial public Marine Social Science Lecture at the Helmholtz Institute for Functional Marine Biodiversity (HIFMB), in Oldenburg takes place 5th November, 11.15-12.45. This year's theme is 'Infrastructuring'. Mia Bennett will be discussing "Critical remote sensing in the new space era: Navigating power, politics, and knowledge from above and below" – a topic of interest to a wide range of fields interested in data, geopolitics, knowledge infrastructure, marine STS and geographies, and justice. The day before there is a day for early careers and interested attendees focused on discussion – theoretical and career oriented – with Mia Bennett (< <https://geography.washington.edu/people/mia-bennett> >). Registration for online or in person attendance, to both or one part, via the link: < <https://hifmb.de/news/events/mssl/> >. Registrations for the pre-day are limited on a first-come, first-served basis.
